Dr. Richard D. Boone is Acting Deputy Director, Division of Graduate Education, at the U.S. National Science Foundation. He is Professor of Ecosystem Ecology in the Department of Biology and Wildlife and the Institute of Arctic Biology at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks. He currently serves as the Co-chair of the NSF Research Traineeship (NRT) Coordinating Committee and served on the White House Office of Science & Technology Policy Graduate Education Modernization Working Group.

10 to 11 a.m.  “Preparing an Effective NSF Proposal: Lessons from the NSF Research Traineeship (NRT) Program”
Albertsons Library, Rm 201C
Join Dr. Richard Boone and Dr. Sian Mooney for this seminar on the NSF Research Traineeship (NRT) program, the potential opportunities it offers Boise State, and recommendations on how to prepare a competitive proposal for this and other NSF programs. From 9-10 a.m. stop by Research Coffee & Donuts in the Library.

1:00 to 2:30 p.m.  “The Changing Landscape of STEM Graduate Education: Alignments, Transitions, and Challenges”
ILC 315 — Center for Teaching and Learning
Dr. Boone’s thought-provoking presentation will explore recent national challenges and drivers that are moving STEM graduate education toward a major transformation. Be part of the discussion and the future.

2:30 to 3:30 p.m.  STEM Graduate Student Reception with Dr. Boone
ILC 315 — Center for Teaching and Learning
All STEM graduate students are invited!

Sponsored by U.S. National Science Foundation

No pre-registration required. All faculty, students, and staff are welcome.
For more information, please visit research.boisestate.edu or contact KimberlyLong@boisestate.edu